WASHINGTON – The National Association of State Workforce Agencies (NASWA) announced that Joe Barela, Executive Director of the Colorado Department of Labor and Employment, has been named Chair-Elect on the association's board of directors.

Barela moves into the Chair-Elect role replacing Michael Harrington, Commissioner of the Vermont Department of Labor, who assumed the role of Chair following the departure of Dr. Tamika Ledbetter, former Commissioner of the Alaska Department of Labor and Workforce Development.

Barela will serve for the remainder of the 2022-23 association year and, per NASWA bylaws, also serve as Chair-Elect for the 2023-24 association year.

"The public workforce system will be critically important as all states emerge from the disruptions of the pandemic and continue to deal with workforce shortages and skills gaps," said Colorado Department of Labor and Employment Executive Director Joe Barela. "With a renewed focus on career connected education and training that supports economic growth and access to career mobility, I'm looking forward to working collectively to provide policy, funding and operational expertise while learning and sharing best practices that promote state, regional and national innovation within the public workforce development ecosystem."
