Workforce Command Center™

Getting your communities back to work in a post-COVID world.

Burning Glass Technologies introduces the Workforce Command Center, your resource for the most up-to-date labor market data to efficiently guide workers to relevant, in-deamnd jobs in your community today.

As communities cope with the "new normal," it's critical to understand how to guide unemployed and at-risk workers along successful career paths. The Workforce Command Center shows you local real-time labor market and unemployed trends, such as the most in-demand occupations, industries, and employers hiring in a location, and recommends re-skilling pathways for workers affected by the COVID crisis and changing economy. This dashboard will enables users to answer:

- What types of jobs have declined as a result of the COVID crisis? What in-demand opportunities do unemployed workers already have the skills to pursue?

- Where are the active employed opportunities? What skills do workers need to get jobs in in-demand occupations and industries?

- How can workforce developers design career pathways for unemployed and underemployed workers?

- What programs should local providers scale up to meet the needs of the new post-COVID economy?
